Re: Eight Mile Road

--	--	--	--	--

Dear Commissioners:

As you know the Eight Mile Road area has become more densely populated over the years. With that increased residential area comes new issues. Our association has received several complaints about the use of "jake" or engine suppression breaks used by trucks that are coming down Eight Mile Road as they approach the intersection of Lower Woodchuck Road.

I was wondering if some type of signage could be installed to ban such engine breaks in this residential area. Any consideration would be appreciated.

I look forward to your prompt action and reply.

Dear Commissioners:

As you know the Right Mills Road area has become more densely populated over the years. With that increased residential use comes new issues. Our association has received several complaints about the use of "jakes" or signs suppression breaks used by trucks that are coming down Right Mills Road as they approach the intersection of Lower Woodstock Road.

I was wondering if some type of signage could be installed to help with engine breaks in this residential area. Any consideration would be appreciated.

I look forward to your prompt action and reply.
