Dear Jim: Thanks for your effort. However there is one big elephant in the room about the FDA and the various Chloroquine reports. Namely: All RX drugs, all the allopathic prescription meds have “side effects”. So, ipso facto they all have at least some safety concerns, and apparently most anyone can choose whatever side effect, or safety concern they want and push it to the top of their list. I say anybody, but will qualify that as anybody in virtually any government agency, any politician, or Doctor who is doing a study for some drug company. IF the door was open to honestly investigate the centuries to millennia of human traditional medical history and uses of humanities age old medicines that assisted us to survive till now, the investigators would discover a multitude of traditional medicines that when used with knowledge are very effective for virtually all of human ailments and are without side effects. The pharmaceutical industry has programmed virtually all with the notion that all traditional medicine's diagnostic and therapeutic procedures were and still are “unscientific”; au contraire!! There is a scientific foundation for all of it as: IE The diagnostic and therapeutic procedures can all be repeated by anyone who understands and follows the procedures. IF it were all nonsense how did we manage to survive till now? In addition, by a close scrutiny of how modern medicine measures human health and compares that to before modern medicine, there are many interesting results that should be investigated. I will sum it up as presently our state of health is much worse than before modern medicine’s arrival. The occurrence of autism is simply one huge elephant in the room statistic.... The controversy that we are witnessing is because there is so much evidence accumulating in an apocalyptic fashion to reveal the incongruities, especially about how to diagnosis Covid-19, does it exist, if it does exist, was it a human engineered bio war weapon, and is there another agenda behind the mask wearing and social distancing that various medical and physical sciences “experts” claim is patently not effective for “prevention” and can actually be harmful, and even more I leave unsaid. Faithfully, Dr, Tim.
