Greetings, and welcome to the month of May for the Lolo plan revision!

The comment period on the draft wild and scenic rivers inventory and outstanding remarkable value evaluation framework and the draft wilderness inventory remains open through May 16th. Thank you for those who have already provided feedback! To comment, click on the Comment Here button found on the main Lolo Revision Web Hub page. You'll find links for two ways you can enter comments online: the online comment submission form (CARA) and a Collaborative Mapping tool. You may also send comments via email, or mail to the physical address provided on the website.

We are taking a break from workshops in May to allow you to focus on your comments, and for us to prepare the next milestone: the draft assessment. We're pleased to continue offering educational webinars, office hours and ranger chats. We understand the desire to spread out ranger chat opportunities; however, due to limited availability we were unable to fully achieve that goal this month.

We hope to post the June engagement schedule very soon to the Web Hub. We plan on opening another 30-day comment period in early June to collect your review and input on the draft assessment. I'll reach out again in mid-May with more information on those next steps.

As always, I thank you for your time and interest in the Lolo's plan revision!

Best regards,

Amanda Milburn, Revision Team Leader
