Final Decision Released for Gold Butterfly Project

Hamilton, MT, August 9 — Bitterroot National Forest Supervisor Matt Anderson has signed the final Record of Decision (ROD) for the Gold Butterfly Project, a vegetation management and fuels reduction project in the Sapphire Mountains east of Corvallis. The project is located on the Stevensville and Darby Ranger Districts between St. Clair Creek to the south and Burnt Fork Creek to the north.

Based on the analysis of project effects in both the Environmental Impact Statement and the Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement, the Forest Supervisor chose Modified Alternative 2 as the management actions to implement with this decision.

The Gold Butterfly Project is designed to:

- Improve forest resilience to natural disturbances like fire, insects, and diseases
- Reduce chronic sediment sources in the Willow Creek watershed
- Improve water quality and bull trout habitat
- Restore or improve key habitat including whitebark pine, meadows, and aspen
- Manage timber to provide forest products, jobs, and income to local communities
- Promote resilience in old growth and retain old growth status in all treatment units

About 90% of proposed treatment acres are within an area designated for insect and disease treatment because of dense pockets of dead and dying trees. The area is impacted by mountain pine beetle, Douglas-fir bark beetle, dwarf mistletoe, and western spruce budworm. The proposed treatments include commercial timber harvest, non-commercial thinning, and prescribed burning to improve forest health.

The Bitterroot Community Wildfire Protection Plan identified most of the area as a 'high priority' for fuels reduction in the Wildland Urban Interface.
